Commenting on the recent article, Los Angeles based Van Rental Center points out the fun and ease of van travel for families and groups for popular California destinations

Los Angeles, CA (PRWEB) January 27, 2016 -- In a recent article published January 6th on People, the author described taking a week long road trip from Los Angeles to San Francisco and highlighted the “must stop” destinations along the way. According to Los Angeles based Van Rental Center, whether a family is in search of sea foam blue Malibu views or the famed wine county of Santa Barbara, California’s highways reward drivers with an endless array of exquisite sights. The rental agency notes that the People article is an excellent reminder of the charming little towns on the road to Big Sur, where travelers can walk along giant cliffs overlooking the beach, enjoy a bottle of local produced wine on their hotel patio, or perhaps even spot a herd of zebras on the way to Hearst Castle. The rental agency additionally points out that, although the writer and her partner took the trip in a convertible, renting a large passenger van may ultimately be more economical and convenient for a number of reasons:

- Upsizing Vehicles – Many groups and families realize that they can save on gas by increasing the capacity of their van and using only one vehicle. Van Rental Center offers vehicles with capacities of up to 15 passengers, and adds that fitting everyone in one vehicle can not only save on fuel costs, it can also help create a more tight-knit, inclusive group, a priceless perk for any business trip or vacation. In addition, outdoor sports enthusiasts and campers alike can simply rent a van to bring their gear and equipment with them to their destinations, so they needn’t replace their economy cars with expensive SUVs.
- Airport Pickup Services – For entertaining out-of-town clients or family members, Van Rental Center prides itself on its convenient airport pick-up locations for those who need ground transportation the moment they disembark from the plane. The proximity of drop-off centers to major airports throughout the Golden State offers added flexibility to road trippers’ itineraries – they can drive to their target destination, drop off their vehicle, and fly home before the start of their work week.

Van Rental Center offers a series of vans ranging in capacity from 8 to 15 passengers, so that families of all sizes can enjoy a California road trip.
