Raleigh, NC (PRWEB) January 2, 2006 -- A new site on the World Wide Web enables people with bad credit - and all other credit grades - to apply for credit using the Internet. The website, found at http://www.fast-auto-loan.net/loan_easy/car.html on the World Wide Web, provides listings and links to resources that can help consumers find loans and insurance quotes.

The site, described as "impressive" by Mike Suilor provides resources not only to information about traditional loans, but directs credit seekers to numerous sites at which they can apply for car loans online at no cost. They can also receive free Insurance Quotes. "The website offers one-stop shopping for consumers" said the site's creator, Doug Parent.

"It's a very well done and comprehensive site," said Amy Yost, a graduate of Marshall University. The site is designed to offer greater breadth and scope than similar sites, Yost said. "Unlike other auto loan sites, this site doesn't just provide links to other resources; it provides helpful editorial content and links to even more invaluable information for consumers" she said. Yost noted that the frequently updated site is also the only one to provide a comprehensive offering of all types of auto loans and automobile insurance rates.

Cliff McMillan, associate director Car-Loans NOW INC, noted that the website contains "lots of nice resources and is attractively laid out as well."

Yost explained that from the comfort of their home, anyone can, apply for a car loan or find a insurance quote at dozens of sites on the Internet.
