

Compare.com Welcomes California Casualty to Comparison Website

Compare.com users will now be offered car insurance policy rates from California Casualty.

Richmond, Va. (PRWEB) February 09, 2016 -- Compare.com, the largest insurance comparison site in the United States, welcomes California Casualty to their auto insurance panel of carriers. California Casualty is a preferred auto and home insurance provider for active and retired educators, education support personnel, higher education employees, law enforcement professionals, firefighters, nurses and nurse practitioners.

California Casualty will return rates on compare.com for consumers searching for auto insurance prices in California and Washington, and then will expand their offerings to Arizona, Colorado, Indiana, Ohio, Oregon and Nevada.

“California Casualty is in business to deliver the highest quality of service and protection at a reasonable price,” said Chief Marketing Officer of California Casualty Mike McCormick. “The partnership with compare.com provides an opportunity to share our unparalleled offering with more educators, firefighters, public safety officers, NPs and RNs across the nation.”

Rather than spending several minutes on multiple sites to get and compare rates from different carriers, users may now use that time on compare.com to get lots of quotes and only having to enter their information once. Once users find a quote they would like to purchase, they may bind the policy via web, phone or a local agent directly with the insurance carrier of their choice.

“We are proud to be adding California Casualty to our insurance panel, as they are focused on providing the best rates possible to community heroes,” compare.com President and CEO Andrew Rose said. “Adding more carriers to our panel also increases quotes returned to consumers, which is our mission. We want to provide the highest level of comparison we can to our users, and California Casualty will help us do that.”
