San Francisco, CA (PRWEB) February 28, 2016 -- Automotive Defense Specialists, a California law firm of attorneys active against Bureau of Automotive Repair Citations and Accusations, is proud to announce an important update to a blog post on Interim Suspension Order Hearings, often called 'ISOs' in the industry. The law firm represents clients who are facing administrative or criminal actions by the California Bureau of Automotive Repair or BAR.

“Our lively blog helps California SMOG check stations and participants in the STAR program to keep up-to-date with regulatory trends, including disciplinary actions of both an administrative and/or criminal nature by the Bureau of Automotive Repair,” explained William Ferreira of the Specialized Law Firm of Automotive Defense Specialists. “As we are hearing reports of ISOs being issued for the new DAD / OIS systems (machines used in SMOG checks), we thought it timely to update our blog post on the topic.”

To read the updated blog post, please visit <http://automotivedefense.com/?p=947>. The updated post overviews issues with respect to how to defeat a petition by the Bureau of Automotive Repair for an Interim Suspension Order. What this means for hard-working California businesses in the automotive repair and/or SMOG check industry is that such an action can result in an immediate loss of their license, pending formal review. This can have a devastating impact on revenue, for a small business, and even should the business prevail against the Bureau it may be too late in a business sense.

Blog Posts to Help Busy California SMOG Check Station Owners and Participants in the STAR Program

The reality is that government employees and government agencies are chartered to spend 100% of their time on regulatory investigations and enforcement matters, while small business owners must wear many hats on a day to day basis. It is difficult, therefore, for the small business owner to keep up with regulatory trends, enforcement actions, and even news events or industry speculation about current actions by the state agency charged with regulating California's automotive repair industry. The blog published by Automotive Defense Specialists aims to address this information imbalance. This latest, important update on DAD / OIS systems and possible ISOs is an important indication of this commitment.
