

Arizona DUI Lawyers Corso Law Group Caution Valley Residents of Increased DUI Patrols This St. Patrick's Day

With 240 DUI arrests during last years St. Patrick's Day, Arizonans can expect an increase in DUI enforcement for this year's celebration, according to Phoenix DUI lawyer Christopher Corso.

Phoenix, Arizona (PRWEB) February 29, 2016 -- With 240 DUI arrests during last years St. Patrick's Day, Arizonans can expect an increase in DUI enforcement for this year's celebration, according to Phoenix DUI lawyer Christopher Corso.

Widely celebrated across the country, St. Patrick's Day is one of the most dangerous holidays due to the number of drunk drivers on the road. In 2013, 40 percent of all crash fatalities involved drunk drivers during St. Patrick's Day weekend, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

As Arizona law enforcement gears for up St. Patrick's Day, DUI patrols will be out in full force in order to combat DUI's and other alcohol-related arrests.

“When it comes to holidays, like St. Patrick's Day, law enforcement takes a closer look at the roads to stop drivers,” said Christopher Corso, founder of Corso Law Group “The police are ready to make these DUI arrests and that can come with deep consequences.”

In Arizona, DUI consequences are harsh. First time DUI offenders can face up to 10 days in jail, expensive fines, mandatory alcohol education, community service and the installation of an ignition interlock.

As well as the legal consequences, a DUI conviction can also come with increased car insurance premiums. According to Nerdwallet, after a DUI conviction, drivers face an average increase of $857.53 a year for insurance.

“If you plan on drinking during St. Patrick's Day, understand that Arizona has some of the strictest DUI laws in the country,” Corso said “We always ask people to stay responsible during this holiday, however, if you find yourself in legal trouble, know that the experienced DUI lawyers at Corso Law Group are here to help.”
