

Portable Weather Shield Invented by InventHelp Client (SFO-126)

InventHelp is attempting to submit the ANNABELLA to appropriate companies for their consideration.

PITTSBURGH, PA (PRWEB) April 25, 2016 -- Getting into and out of a car may seem like a simple activity. However, a heavy rain or the blistering sun glare may complicate the process, especially if the driver needs to place a child in a car seat or to load groceries in the car. Exciting news: fortunately, an inventor from San Jose, Calif., thought of a way for drivers to be prepared for bad weather in these types of situations.

She developed ANNABELLA to provide protection from the rain and the sun when entering or leaving a motor vehicle. As such, it eases the task of loading and unloading a car. It is particularly effective for getting infants and children into and out of car seats. Furthermore, it is lightweight, portable, adjustable and comes in standard colors or in a variety of designer/festive colors of one's choice. Besides that, it is durable to withstand wind. At the same time, it is easy to install, remove and operate. It is also convenient, effective and affordably priced. In addition, it is versatile and can be used with a number of other items or for a variety of other occasions.

The inventor's personal experience inspired the idea. "I have a baby and noticed that when it rained, it was difficult to take her in and out of the car," she said. "I wanted to find a way to keep us both dry and realized that this idea would not only work for the rain but also as a shade from the sun."

The original design was submitted to the San Francisco office of InventHelp. It is currently available for licensing or sale to manufacturers or marketers.
