

The Sacramento Labor Law Lawyers at Blumenthal, Nordrehaug & Bhowmik File a Class Action Lawsuit Against Archer Trucking Alleging Unpaid Overtime Wages

The class action filed by the Sacramento employment law attorneys at Blumenthal, Nordrehaug & Bhowmik alleges the company violated various California Labor Code provisions by failing to pay its Truck Driver employees the proper amount of overtime wages

(PRWEB) April 24, 2016 -- The Sacramento employment law lawyers at Blumenthal, Nordrehaug & Bhowmik filed a class action lawsuit alleging that Archer Trucking, Inc. failed to pay their Truck Drivers in California the correct amount of overtime wages and allegedly failed to provide their truck driver employees with proper rest periods in accordance with the California Labor Code. The Archer Trucking, lawsuit, Case No. SCU-K-CVG-16-67106 is currently pending in the Mendocino County Superior Court for the State of California.

According to the class action complaint the trucking company allegedly paid their non-exempt employees non-discretionary bonus wages based on their performance for the company. The Complaint further alleges that as a matter of law the various bonus wages received by the truck drivers should have been included in the employees' hourly rates for the purposes of paying the truck driver employees the correct overtime wages. As a result of the alleged illegal overtime calculations conducted by Archer Trucking, the class action lawsuit claims other truck drivers, besides the five truck drivers who brought the lawsuit, were also not correctly paid all their overtime wages. The Complaint also seeks penalties relating to alleged missed rest breaks because allegedly Archer Trucking did not have a policy to provide their truck drivers with proper rest periods in accordance with the California Labor Code.
