

Rookie Driver Kelly MacPhaden is on the Fast Track in Canadian Racing

Ajax woman discovers her newly found talents in the Canadian Automobile Sports Club-Ontario Region-Formula F1rst Series

(PRWEB) August 19, 2003 -- Ajax-Ontario, Canada (PRWEB) August, 2003 -- - Kelly MacPhaden, a female race car driver who currently competes in the Formula F1rst Series, has been burning up the track in her success this year thus far. Kelly has recently taken up racing as a hobby and has been noticed by some as being blessed with a natural talent. Being in her rookie year, she has had her share of growing pains, engine failures and a crash that almost ended her dream.

However, despite the setbacks, Kelly has adapted quickly and over came the obstacles propelled by her determination to succeed. Kelly's past results have showed that not only is she doing extremely well in her racing efforts, she has taken the time off track to campaign with Mothers Against Drunk Driving Canada-Toronto Chapter and to help raise funds to fight against Huntington's Disease.

Kelly was the first woman and rookie to lead the Formula F1rst Series until she encountered mechanical failure at Mosport International Raceway. Kelly's major team sponsors, Hydraco Fluid Cylinders and Lanigan and George Consulting Inc. have been part of her success.

Kelly states, "I would like to thank Guardsman Security Service, Reptile Advertising, Kumho Tires, Quaker State Oil, Street Speed Racing Graphics, Regalis Restaurant, Inside Track, British Automobile Racing Club and ABC Racing for their support this year. I hope to extend our partnership into the 2004 racing season."

Kelly is currently campaigning to compete in the Canadian Formula Ford.

Contact Information

Kelly Macphaden

Kelly MacPhaden Race Team

Online Web 2.0 Version

You can read the online version of this press release here.