

The US Mat Exposes Abuse By State Driver License Reciprocal Regulators

Inter state drivers license reciprocal agreements between states is not well known by most Americans. A lead story entitled "Stuck In The Reciprocal Drivers License Matrix" appearing in the internet publication theusmat.com is of a 71 + year old Wisconsin resident and voter, sole care giver to stroke victim brother in a rural Wisconsin area who was miss reported as an Illinois resident in a 1987 non accident dui by the local district attorney

(PRWEB) August 30, 2003 -- August, 2003 -- Stuck in the Driver License reciprocal matrix is a true verifiable story The US Mat relates the attempts since then to get a drivers license that has been unsuccessful The road blocks and miss-information and even verbal abuse handed out by both the Illinois Secretary of State and the Wisconsin Department of Transportation the two inter state reciprocal regulators involved.

The county DA who ignored the judges instruction to correct this misreporting, the Illinois Secretary of State who refuses to surrender its jurisdiction, the Wisconsin Department of Transportation not disclosing or partially disclosing information he received while attempting to legally drive which is a necessity in this rural area.

The article takes issue with the way state drivers license regulators use their power claiming parsing out of information or often offering miss information and deliberately delaying the issuance of a license exceeding court direction and intent because of their status as a regulator.

It also cites examples of excess in its law clerks quiz that most don't know about and should be addressed by legislation.

The dot com publication known as The US Mat published by a former Chicago weekly editor and poet L.J. Keslin is seeking similar stories with the hopes of setting up a class action suit and welcomes input from lawyers for getting corrective inter-state legislative corrective action and hopefully legal redress for the individual involved in the story.
