Chicago, IL (PRWEB) January 5, 2011 -- Collision Revision, a Chicago-based operator of collision repair centers, is proud to announce the acquisition of Cal's Collision Center. This center, located at 2929 W. 38th Street in Chicago, is 15,000 square feet and has served the southwest Chicago community for 56 years.

“Cal's Collision Center is one of the premier body shops in the city of Chicago known for their commitment to a high quality repair and incredible customer experience” said Brandon Thomas, Vice President of Acquisitions for Collision Revision. “Our company is excited to have the opportunity to grow in a great city like Chicago with all of the same employees that made Cal's great.”

Charles Mueller, the owner of Cal's Collision Center, commented on the sale by saying, “I am very pleased with how things turned out. It wasn't easy to sell the business that my family built over 50 years, but I'm confident that our customers will be extremely happy with Collision Revision because of their standards of excellence.”

“We are really excited about the integration of Cal's Collision Center, which positions our company to better serve our insurance partners, vehicle owners, and fleet customers in the southwest Chicago market” stated Chief Operating Officer R.J. D'Orazio. “Our operating strategy includes a growth plan that focuses on increasing our geographic footprint to provide accretive repair solutions to a wide range of clients, and this acquisition compliments that plan. Additionally, we were able to retain all of Cal's employees, including Derek Mueller (Charles Mueller's son) who will remain in the role of the facility's General Manager.”

Collision Revision is always looking to add new collision repair locations to its existing network of facilities. Interested facility owners are asked to contact Brandon Thomas at 800-773-1011 or visit collisionrevision.com for more information.
