

Auto Accident Lawyer David Perecman Offers Advice After Arsenio Hall Loses Control of New Porsche

New York auto accident lawyer David Perecman at The Perecman Firm offers advice on driving unfamiliar cars after Arsenio Hall has a one-car accident while driving his brand new Porsche.

New York, New York (PRWEB) December 31, 2013 -- Talk show host Arsenio Hall was uninjured after he drove his new Porsche off a road in West Hills, California, said the Los Angeles Times (12.24.13). This accident is a reminder that new cars can be dangerous even to experienced drivers, said auto accident lawyer David Perecman, founder of The Perecman Firm.

Drugs and alcohol were not believed to be factors in the crash, reported the Los Angeles Times. "An important lesson for all drivers is that fact that knowing how to drive one type of car does not mean being able to handle all cars," said Perecman.

Unfamiliar vehicles may include a new car, a rental car, or a friend's vehicle. Driving a luxury sports car is very different from driving a SUV, which is very different than driving a truck.

While driving unfamiliar vehicles can be dangerous, so can trying to reach an unfamiliar destination. Drivers who read a map or GPS increase their chances of having an accident, especially when the directions from the map or device don't match the actual roads exactly. This is a distraction that can be avoided if drivers driving in an unfamiliar area remember to consult a GPS or map only when parked. A parked driver can take the needed time to orientate and visualize the route.

"When driving an unfamiliar car or driving in new territory many drivers feel anxious that they will get into an accident. Just having this feeling may distract a driver and end up causing an accident. Drivers should allow themselves extra time to get to their destinations," said Perecman.
