

Inventor and InventHelp Client Develops Personalized Vehicle Decoration (BRK-2135)

Based in Pittsburgh, InventHelp is submitting the BUMPER STICKERS to appropriate companies for their consideration.

PITTSBURGH, PA (PRWEB) July 16, 2016 -- "Around 2:00 in the morning, I heard someone say 'bumper sticker' in a funny way, and ever since then I got this image stuck in my head," said an inventor from Birmingham, Ala. "I decided to pursue my bumper-sticker design because I think it makes a vehicle look tough and cool."

He developed the patent-pending BUMPER STICKER'S to make a truck or other vehicle look tough and cool. The accessory features an attention-getting design that serves as a conversation piece. The invention allows the appearance of a vehicle to be customized easily. It is designed to be reusable. Furthermore, the decoration ensures that the vehicle stands out from the crowd.

The original design was submitted to the Birmingham office of InventHelp. It is currently available for licensing or sale to manufacturers or marketers.
