

Bureau of Automotive Repair Citation Page Update Announced by Automotive Repair Specialists

Automotive Defense Specialists is known as the leading law firm assisting in defense of automotive repair stations (including SMOG check and STAR Program stations) against the Bureau of Automotive Repair. The firm has updated its informational page on citations.

San Francisco, CA (PRWEB) July 22, 2016 -- Automotive Defense Specialists, a California law firm of attorneys defending against Bureau of Automotive Repair citations, accusations, and letters, is proud to announce that it has updated its informational page on Bureau of Automotive Repair citations to be used by the general public. The Bureau of Automotive Repair often sends out 'citations' by mail due to an alleged infraction by a SMOG check station, participant in the state's STAR program, or an individual SMOG technician.

“Many technicians and station owners struggle even to understand the obtuse language used by the Bureau of Automotive Repair in its correspondence,” explained attorney William Ferreira of Automotive Defense Specialists. “Our updated page is a gateway to a very basic discussion of these citations, and contains a new link to our blog category so that interested persons can read the latest posts to our blog on citations.”

Assisting California Station Owners and Technicians Against the Bureau of Automotive Repair

California's Bureau of Automotive Repair is charged with enforcing the State's requirements with respect to anti-SMOG efforts. In its mission, the Bureau oversees several thousand SMOG check stations in California, including participants in the so-called STAR Program. Station owners and technicians, who are not, generally, highly educated in the ways of bureaucracy and the law, are nonetheless subject to regulatory requirements that are often communicated to them in the form of obtuse letters, citations, and accusations. Having received a citation, for example, the average station owner or technician can have a tremendous amount of difficulty even understanding the administrative, regulatory, or legal issues in play, much less responding to them in an equitable fashion. By posting frequently to its blog and offering consultation services, Automotive Defense Specialists has made a name for itself as the place to go to find a defense attorney to represent oneself against the Bureau of Automotive Repair. Citations are just one form of communication, and the updated informational page aims to help affected parties take the first step towards understanding their situation.
