

Privacy Barrier Invented for Accident Scenes - Designed by InventHelp Client (CBA-2708)

InventHelp is a leading invention submission company, and is submitting THE STILL to companies for their review.

PITTSBURGH, PA (PRWEB) November 15, 2015 -- There's hardly a day that goes by without the media posting or printing a photograph of a motor vehicle accident. While these images appeal to the curiosity of viewers and readers, they sometimes invade the privacy of the victims and their families. Luckily, an inventor from Orangeburg, S.C., had found a way to shield these victims against prying eyes.

He developed THE STILL to provide privacy for an injured motor vehicle accident victim awaiting or receiving treatment on the scene. As such, it also safeguards the general public against disturbing accident scenes. Similarly, it affords respect for the dead body of an accident or murder victim lying on a road or highway. Furthermore, it can help prevent accidents by ensuring protection and privacy for a motorist who must change a flat tire on the highway. When not in use, it folds for easy storage. It is also convenient, effective, easy to use and affordably priced. In addition, it is lightweight yet durable for years of effective use.

The inventor was inspired to create this after he saw a terrible automobile accident where a child was killed. The body was left in full view of passersby for hours. That scene motivated him to pursue this idea to spare the loved ones of such victims further trauma.

The original design was submitted to the Columbia office of InventHelp. It is currently available for licensing or sale to manufacturers or marketers.
