

Inventor and InventHelp Client Designs Vehicle Organizational Aid (IPL-328)

InventHelp, founded in 1984, is submitting the Jones Auto Visor Pouch to companies for their consideration.

PITTSBURGH, PA (PRWEB) October 08, 2016 -- An inventor from Indianapolis, Ind., wanted to fulfill the need for a device that neatly stores and contains automotive documents.

The patent-pending Jones Auto Visor Pouch prevents one from being flustered and disorganized when pulled over by the police. It ensures that paperwork is readily available, neat and presentable to an officer. It also saves time and effort. Additionally, it helps to avoid unwanted embarrassment and stress. The Jones Auto Visor Pouch is readily adaptable to a variety of vehicles.

“I wanted to design something that would keep important loose papers organized and easily accessible in a vehicle,” said the inventor.

The original design was submitted to the Indianapolis office of InventHelp. It is currently available for licensing or sale to manufacturers or marketers.
