Auto insurance can be a really costly investment. We are talking about many thousands of dollars spent over the course of several years for coverage. Saving even 10% of that value will give policyholders a consistent sum of money. Drivers should use <http://compare-autoinsurance.org> to get free quotes and compare prices. Policyholders should try the following strategies for lowering insurance costs:

- Set higher deductible levels. Collision and comprehensive coverage require deductibles before paying the claim. A high deductible means more financial responsibility and lower premiums. The trick here is to find a deductible that can be easily paid when making a claim.
- Avoid buying useless medical coverage. Buying PIP and Medicare car coverage is not crucial if the policyholder has a solid health insurance plan. Just buy the minimum PIP if required by the state.
- Make a list of all available discounts provided by the insurer. Each insurance company provides a series of discounts. Ask an insurance representative to provide a list of available discounts and prerequisites for each of them. The most common discounts include low mileage, safety gear, multi-car insurance, loyalty, and no-claim bonus.
- Notify the insurance provider about major life changes. The insurance company may not be aware that some major aspects in the client's life have changed. Getting married, working from home and retiring is very influential for insurance premiums.
