Policyholders that own a vehicle are facing numerous responsibilities. Besides the need for properly maintaining their vehicles, policyholders also need to take measures to protect them against car thieves.

- Installing reliable alarm systems and anti-theft devices will improve the overall safety rating and will help drivers get some insurance discounts. The anti-theft devices market is so diverse and affordable for everyone, so there is no reason for car owners not to purchase an anti-theft device.
- Immobilizer systems are another solution that can make vehicles safer against thieves. A preventive device such as a hidden ignition kill switch, fuel cut-off or smart key can discourage car thieves. Not being able to start the car will make the thieves back down.
- Avoid leaving the car's engine running while leaving it unattended. A car can easily get stolen if the engine is running. Thieves only need to break a window and unlock the door in order to steal a vehicle.
- Do not expose valuable items that can be easily targeted by thieves. If a policyholder must keep a valuable item in his car, he should avoid exposing it by keeping the item under the seat or in the trunk. Exposed valuable items are tempting for nearby thieves.
- Park the car in a safe monitored location. Places with a high degree of public visibility, preferably in intensely-circulated areas are ideal for parking a vehicle.
- GPS tracking systems are ideal when it comes to retrieving a stolen vehicle. Many new car models come with a GPS tracking system already installed, or as an optional feature. Authorities can quickly recover stolen vehicles that are equipped with GPS tracking systems.
