

Kars4Kids Releases Car Recycling Statistics in San Francisco, CA

Kars4Kids releases recycling statistics for San Francisco.

Lakewood, NJ (PRWEB) May 01, 2013 -- Kars4Kids, a national car donation charity, released statistics outlining their significant work and impact through car recycling programs in the San Francisco, CA region today. The information includes the measurement in tons for the organization's efforts during the year 2012, as well as their cumulative efforts from 2005 to today.

“At Kars4Kids, we know how much San Francisco residents care about – and contribute to – making the Earth a better place for us all to live,” said Robert Moskovits, Vice President and Director of Business Development at Kars4Kids. “San Francisco is a place known for its appreciation of the outdoors and clean air and because of this, car recycling as a part of our car donation programs and has always been a large focus for us in this area. We hope that showing individuals how a small donation can be a part of a larger global impact will help to create a better place to live for our children, a place where green living is part of everyday living.”

The statistics for car recycling in the San Francisco, CA metro area are as follows:

Cars donated to kars4kids from San Francisco area in 2012:
