

Detroit's Top Traffic Reporter Releases First Novel

John Bailey, morning drive traffic reporter for WWJ Newsradio 950, has released his first novel.

(PRWEB) May 14, 2004 --John Bailey, part of Detroit's top-rated morning drive team on WWJ Newsradio 950, has released his first novel. Boyne Falls Baroque tells the story of reformed computer hacker Brian Mercer, who hits the dotcom jackpot only to lose it all in the market crash. As he returns to the workforce, Brian falls in love with Miiko, a Japanese musician who feels an odd sexual attraction to her cello. Miiko introduces Brian to Grampa Sam, a former Yakuza boss who claims to have discovered a method of divining the movement of stock prices by using the I Ching. Through Grampa Sam, Brian becomes inadvertently embroiled in a stock-trading scam. When the FBI takes an interest in his activities, Brian is forced to return to his hacker ways to prove his innocence.

Contact Information

John Bailey

<http://www.boynefallsbaroque.com>

Online Web 2.0 Version

You can read the online version of this press release here.