

Truckers & Hookers

Feature Documentary

(PRWEB) May 30, 2004 -- Truckers and hookers are invisible in today's society; Romantic ideals to some, embarrassing realities to others. Movies and television have taught us about the professions, but what are their lives really like?

Like us, they are people-People with stories to tell.

For Truckers accustomed to encountering prostitutes, lot lizards or Mustang Ranches as a daily ritual, each "sailor of the concrete sea" has determined to either appreciate the services these ladies provide or to resent them. Likewise, their female counterparts confess exploitation; whether of themselves or their exploitation of men to whom pleasures of the flesh are sold.

Serving as a window into the two subcultures, the film analyzes both perspectives of the basic human desires for companionship and physical contact. Froggy, Young "Un, Queen of Hearts, Sharky and others offer uncensored accounts of life on the American road. It's an honest look at honest living.
