

Meridian Honda gets customers excited for the automaker's hatchback options

The 2020 Fit and 2020 Civic Hatchback continue to bring a lot to the table for the new model year

MERIDIAN, Miss. (PRWEB) January 31, 2020 -- While Honda produces a full range of crossover SUVs, it still offers a few hatchback options to make sure buyers can find what they are looking for. Meridian Honda has received its first deliveries of the 2020 Honda Fit and the 2020 Honda Civic Hatchback. Both of these models make the most of their unique geometry to maximize interior cargo volume which also helps to make these vehicles convenient to use. Additionally, both of these Honda models can be outfitted with the latest connectivity technology the automaker has to offer. The dealership's team of product experts have been excited to let new and returning customers know what these vehicles have to offer.

The 2020 Honda Fit can be found in four trims, LX, Sport, EX and EX-L. Each of these versions offers something slightly different to its owners. The top two models of the 2020 Fit are equipped with the Honda Sensing® suite of active safety systems. Future owners of the 2020 Fit who would like to take advantage of the available connectivity options will want to focus on the Sport, EX and EX-L models. Those trim grades will offer access to both the Apple CarPlay® and Android Auto™ suites of applications.

However, where the 2020 Honda Fit really shines is interior cargo volume. When there are passengers sitting in the back seat, there will be 16.6 cubic-feet of cargo space. Drivers can fold the rear seat down to open up the cargo bay to offer 52.7 cubic-feet of storage volume. This configuration of the 2020 Fit will rival many compact crossover SUVs in terms of maximum available cargo-hauling capability.

No discussion about the latest Honda inventory would be complete without a discussion of the Honda Civic. The 2020 Honda Civic Hatchback (LX, Sport, EX, EX-L and Sport Touring) has more than a few competitors that try to distract customers with flashy promises. When it's compared to one of its perennial rivals, the 2020 Civic Hatchback LX (the base model), is able to offer more standard horsepower and more available maximum cargo volume. When its properly configured, the 2020 Hatchback LX will make up to 46.2 cubic-feet of storage available, compared to just 20.1 cubic-feet from its top competitor.
