

Find Your Car With Government Auctions

Every month, 1000s of cars become government & bank property through various seizure/surplus laws. Because of the constant influx of vehicles and the enormous expense to store them, the cars must be sold fast and cheap!

(PRWEB) September 2, 2004 -- Every day thousands of Americans default on their car loans or lease payments as a result, their new or almost new cars get repossessed by the financial institutions and auctioned off in a hurry. The cost of storing the cars outweighs the banks' ability to try to make the lost money back.

Consequently, lucky people who have access to direct sources where the cars are being sold would find themselves overwhelmed by dirt-cheap offers that look unbelievable to the average car buyer. This is real and is being taken advantage of by many car dealers.

Cheap Car Finder is offering unlimited access to the updated government auction database. You will be able to find cars at prices you never imagined. Andy from California used our system to buy himself a BMW. Here is what he told us about the program , "Unreal! All my friends wonder how I could afford my BMW :) Many, many thanks to your site!!"
