

New Book Finds Many Readers, Exposes Underbelly of Automobile Retailers - "Cardinal Culpability" Is for Everyone Who Buys a Car

"Cardinal Culpability" by G. Daniel Pernell appeals to mass audience. Revealing information that car dealers prefer you don't know.

(PRWEB) October 30, 2004 -- Denver, Colorado author G. Daniel Pernell speaks to everyone who buys a car in his new book "Cardinal Culpability". A fictional crime drama set in the luxury end of the retail car business, Pernell reminds readers why it is "you against them and them against you." in almost all dealings with retail car dealers.

This story centers around the life and lifestyle of Anthony Pirilli, the youngest Mercedes-Benz dealer in the country at age 30. Financing for his enterprise was obtained through organized crime who wishes not to have that known. When Pirilli suffers business losses in tougher times he resorts to illegal activities to keep his business afloat.

Finally, he is caught in a wedge between his nefarious financiers and an aggressive prosecution team that wishes to punish him for his misdeeds.

"Cardinal Culpability" blazed a trail by moving up 400,000 places on Barnes & Noble's sales ranking in just its first eight weeks. Readers can order the book on-line at www.BN.com or visit Barnes & Noble retailers.
