

New Digs, New Rigs Â□ Power Freight Rolls Out Oregon Shipping, Warehousing and Logistics Center

New Portland, Oregon distribution and logistics hub extends services to the greater Pacific Northwest, expands shipping and warehousing capacity.

(PRWEB) November 2, 2004 -- Power Freight Systems, a leading west-coast third party logistics provider (3PL), today announces the opening of their Portland, Oregon distribution and logistics hub, serving the Pacific Northwest.

Launching local trucking, warehousing and distribution in the region, the company offers full scale freight services between the Silicon Valley and PortlandÂ□s burgeoning high-tech market.

Â□Our ongoing commitment to empower clients through information visibility and new technologies has been a big plus for high-tech companies,Â□ says Malcolm Winspear, Power Freight Systems CEO. Â□That is why Portland is a perfect fit for our regional base and a strategic foothold for rolling-out expanded services on a national scale.Â□

Power Freight Systems already possesses a world class reputation for ground-breaking, time-critical logistics and distribution. The Northwest expansion strengthens core operations and creates a number of opportunities for future growth.

Â□This growth investment reinforces Power FreightÂ□s commitment to our important Northwest customer base and builds capacity in our Northern California hub,Â□ adds Winspear.

The new, fully operational Oregon facility offers daily, two-way line haul services between Portland and the San Francisco Bay Area, backed by the same level responsiveness and reliability that has made Power Freight as an industry leader.
