

Dodge Nitro Transfer Cases Now Sold to SUV Owners at TransferCasesforSale.com

Dodge Nitro transfer cases are now sold online to SUV owners at the TransferCasesforSale.com website. This company now offers used and rebuilt editions of these Dodge case assemblies for discounted prices for vehicle owners that are searching for replacement parts.

San Francisco, California (PRWEB) January 04, 2013 -- The TransferCasesforSale.com company is now selling its editions of Dodge Nitro transfer cases online. These SUV cases were used in more than one vehicle in the Dodge lineup and are now sold in rebuilt and used condition. The acquisition and sale of these case assemblies online is expected to help SUV owners and those that replace cases in preowned vehicles. Chrysler invested into its Dodge brand in the late 1990s to help improve the consumer confidence in these vehicles. The pickup truck series was expanded as well as the SUV lineup. The early 2000s was the first introduction of the Nitro and this vehicle was produced for a 48-month period.

The case assemblies that are now in stock for this vehicle are now offered at a discounted price to help buyers find a replacement that is priced lower than a factory fresh unit.

The transmission, engine and 4x4 system in compatible vehicles works together to control the amount of torque that trucks and SUVs require for off-road control. It is the transfer case that is one of the integral components in trucks and SUVs. The internal gearing and delicate parts usually require service at a certain mileage point. The preowned and rebuilt units that are now sold online provide dual options for replacing these units in 4x4 vehicles.

Recent upgrades have taken place for the company inventory apart from the Dodge and Chrysler lineup. Most domestic and foreign case assemblies are now part of the online and offline inventory. The website launch last year has helped more people to make use of this online resource to find a quality replacement.

The addition of spin testing is one way that the in stock rebuilt units are confirmed to be OEM quality. These spin tests are now offered for all inventory to assure buyers that purchase reconditioned units that the internal gearing is factory quality.
