Atlanta (PRWEB) October 06, 2016 -- David Flanders, PE, relocated to HNTB Corporation's Atlanta office to serve as transportation project director and vice president. He transitioned from his role as HNTB's Baton Rouge, Louisiana, office leader.

With more than 32 years of consulting engineering experience, and roots in Georgia, Flanders has been responsible for the design and management of civil, transportation, geotechnical and municipal projects. He also has worked on numerous water projects throughout the state.

“David has deep ties to the area which provide him with a valuable understanding of both opportunities and challenges facing our transportation landscape,” said Jeff Parker, HNTB Atlanta office leader and vice president. “His expertise will benefit transportation agencies here in Georgia who are working to deliver some of the nation's largest and most complex infrastructure programs.”

In Louisiana, Flanders was program manager for design of the $350 million phased-construction LA1 Relocated elevated highway project for the Louisiana Department of Transportation and Development. He also served as principal for the Biloxi Infrastructure Repair program in Mississippi and the Submerged Roads and more recently, Path to Progress, program in New Orleans for LADOTD.

Prior to joining HNTB, Flanders' project experience in Georgia included projects in Henry County, Bibb County and several municipalities throughout the state.

Flanders received the 2002 Engineer of the Year award and the 2000 Engineer of the Year in Private Practice award from the Georgia Society of Professional Engineers and served as president of that organization. He earned a Bachelor of Science in civil engineering from Clemson University and a Master of Business Administration from Georgia College.
