351W used transmissions are now for sale in the Ford inventory online at the Got Transmissions company. These Windsor and Cleveland engines compatible units are sold under MSRP.

Gary, IN (PRWEB) January 07, 2014 -- The Ford Cleveland engine series used in the 1970s and 1980s helped position Ford as a truck engine leader in the U.S. Transmission assemblies that are designed for replacements in trucks and vans using the 351 engine series are now found for sale at the Got Transmissions company. This company is selling 351W used transmissions online at <http://gottransmissions.com/ford-transmissions.html>.

This change to the classic gearbox inventory now advertised online is expected to attract owners of vintage Ford vehicles seeking transmission builds for a low price. Each 351W unit that is now for sale online has been validated for mileage counts as well as the internal quality offered. These V8 engine compatible transmissions are now discounted in the Ford inventory online.

Aside from the compatibility offered with the Cleveland engines, the Windsor engine series that is compatible with the 351W gearbox provides additional opportunities for buyers. Many out of production engines can be difficult to find parts for replacement online and the transmissions now for sale are providing one optional resource.

"Classic motor vehicle parts like transmissions in older vehicles are not generally stocked by local parts retailers making research more difficult for U.S. buyers," said a source at the GotTransmissions.com company.

The replacement Ford Motor Company transmissions inventory that is currently updated and featured online has been built up since 2007. New providers of replacement inventory have been added in 2014 to provide more ways to find transmissions that are out of production that are designed to fit the vintage vehicles for most automakers.

"The 351W compatible transmissions now for sale online are in addition to the late model builds for F-Series trucks that are listed for online sale," the source included.

The Got Transmissions company is currently offering warranty protection with each vintage transmission sold in the United States. These plans are one new feature added to the inventory marketed for public sale.

Buyers who do not have access to researching this new inventory online can call the company directly at 1-866-320-1182 to find stock status and price details.
