Midland, TX (PRWEB) January 09, 2014 -- Research conducted for engine replacements for some vehicle brands used in the United States can produce difficulties due to automakers discontinuing engine technologies. The Got Engines company specializes in hard to locate vehicle engines and is now adding Ford Ranger 2.5 engine inventory in used condition at <http://www.gotengines.com/ford/rebuilt-ford-engines.html>.

These motors are produced by Ford Motor Company between 1998 and 2001 for the light-duty truck series. These OHV motors are no longer in production in four-cylinder builds due to the creation of the Duratec motors now preferred in most vehicles.

The Got Engines company has acquired these motors through its adjusted partnerships in the auto distribution industry for 2014. These suppliers are now part of the full-time providers of used engines that are acquired for public sale.

The arrival of these 2.5 engines is expected to attract additional attention to the existing Ranger inventory that is promoted direct on the Got Engines website. Engines in 2.8 and 2.9 displacement for use in the Ranger series were added during the last half of 2013.

"Buying replacement engines through our website is now easier due to the expanded tools for automotive research we're now presenting online," one source at the GotEngines.com company said.

The acquisitions for different engine brands that are more difficult to locate from second hand suppliers is one phase of the new year upgrades at the Got Engines company. The development of the price locator service online has now been completed and the system is active on the company homepage.

"Instant price quotations and inventory information for each units in stock is now delivered online as a way to help online buyers perform faster comparisons for engine inventory," the source included.

This new system aside from the Ford Ranger 2.5 engines now supplied online is expected to increase sales that are processed on the company website this year. Complete warranty details for each engine in stock in now supplied to buyers reviewing the company website.
