

Inventor and InventHelp Client Develops Exciting Accessory for Motorcyclists (ALL-838)

Pennsylvania-based InventHelp is working to submit the SPARXX to companies for their possible feedback.

Pittsburgh, PA (PRWEB) December 16, 2016 -- "I love riding a motorcycle and wanted a way to take the passion of being on a bike to the next level," said an inventor from Stockbridge, Ga. "I came up with this idea to enable the rider to show off and draw attention to oneself in a really exciting way."

He developed SPARXX to make the rider look more appealing and exciting. The accessory draws attention to the biker. It ensures that other motorists see the motorcyclist clearly. The unit provides a fun and engaging way to show off while riding a motorcycle. The device can be used while riding any motorcycle. Additionally, it is producible in other design variations.

The original design was submitted to the Atlanta office of InventHelp. It is currently available for licensing or sale to manufacturers or marketers.
