

Aisin Transmission Rebuilt Units Now for Sale at U.S. Rebuilding Company Website

Aisin transmission rebuilt units are now sold online through the PowertrainPros.com company. These reconditioned gearboxes are now available for use in many automaker brands of vehicles.

Evansville, IN (PRWEB) January 10, 2014 -- The transmission manufacturing industry remains competitive on the global market due to technological changes in auto manufacturing. The Powertrain Pros company is one rebuilding company that is now expanding its inventory in the U.S. This company is including Aisin transmission rebuilt inventory for sale at <http://powertrainpros.com/aisin-transmission-rebuilt>.

The Aisin company is currently the largest independent producer of automatic vehicle transmissions in the world. This company is co-owned by Toyota and provides many of the transmission builds that are used in automaker brands. The remanufactured units currently for sale by the PowertrainPros.com company are meant to introduce other manufacturers to the U.S. market.

The reconditioning facility that is now used to supply all of the transmissions that are posted online for sale is updated with leading technologies. These upgrades combined with a newly hired rebuilding staff are presenting new resources to buyers of transmission replacement inventory on a national level.

"Aisin is now one of the gearbox designs that are rebuilt by experts at our company to create solutions for mechanics, car owners, warranty agencies and salvage industries to find quality builds online," a source at the PowertrainPros.com company said.

One advantage that users of the company website are expected to benefit from this year is the instant sticker price discovery system enacted online. A new change to the inventory display features online is now generating automatic price quotations for any automatic or standard transmission in stock.

"The technology now available online is creating a faster system for inventory research and includes full warehouse pricing for all remanufactured gearboxes," the source included.

The PowertrainPros.com now receives automated updates for each transmission unit posted for sale online. These updates combined with the technology users of the website have available are expected to increase sales and distribution in the U.S. market compared to the previous 12 months.

The established toll-free phone number active at 1-888-292-8807 is now one of the optional resources to acquire pricing, company information and shipping details for every rebuilt transmission brand in stock.

About PowertrainPros.com

The PowertrainPros.com company is its expanding national company offering replacement transmissions to buyers at low prices. This company rebuilds many automotive transmission brands inside its United States headquarters. The PowertrainPros.com company website is one of the resources that buyers use when seeking transmissions for sale online. The customer support team this company offers is available online and directly through the call center in place. The company inventory is added to each week with new builds of classic and modern gearboxes for sale to buyers.

Contact Information

Davey Norris

PowertrainPros.com

<http://powertrainpros.com>

+1 (904) 701-4550

Online Web 2.0 Version

You can read the online version of this press release here.