San Antonio, Texas (PRWEB) January 11, 2013 -- Chevrolet pickup trucks have helped to build the sales of General Motors over the past 30 years. Truck owners searching for replacement engines now have a way to purchase online for a discount price. The Remanufactured Engines for Sale company is now selling rebuilt Chevy engines directly to the public. The entire inventory is now searchable online and includes accurate engine information. The Chevrolet brand and its GMC sister models have helped to convince millions of truck buyers in the U.S. and Canada to own these vehicles. The GM engineering and development programs are among the best in the auto industry. The V6 and V8 engine sizes that are produced are used throughout the SUV and pickup truck editions.

The replacement motors that are now custom built and offered online provide engine buyers with the value that is expected when buying from a reputable dealer.

The direct sales to the public that are now offered online are in combination with the business-to-business sales already in place. One of the important aspects of the quality control when building motors is the testing and development phase. Both vehicle owners and companies purchasing on behalf of customers can find varying quality of engines for sale online. The use of a dynamometer and the measurements and calibration this device supplies is one way that the RemanufacturedEnginesforSale.com company is able to achieve higher quality builds.

The upgrades to the inventory represents one example of how this company has expanded over the past year. The integration of a new company warranty policy is helping to provide more protection for buyers of all of the makes and models that are now in stock. The Ford, Chevy, Dodge, Mazda and Toyota inventories are all eligible for the new protection.

This extension now offers 36 months of coverage in the standard policies. The news announcement late last year for this new incentive can be found online at <http://www.prweb.com/releases/remanufactured-dodge/engines-for-sale/prweb9854325.htm>.
